WORK ON EASTERN LINE

Contractor Will Begin Construction
on C. N. R. Extension

Port Arthur, June 11.—Work will commence at once on the eastern extension of the C. N. R. Contractor Murdoch has arrived from the east and will have the contract for 80 miles of the line.

FORMER STRATHCONA BOYS MISS

A Port Arthur dispatch of June 1, says: Uneasiness is felt in the home of J. S. McNulty, merchant because of the mysterious disappearance of his twelve-year-old son. The lad left home Saturday morning at 9 o'clock for his father's store, but never reached there. He was seen about the hour named in Waverly Park by some boys and that appears to be the last seen of him. A most diligent search has failed to find any trace of him since then. It was thought he might have boarded one of the outgoing vessels and telegrams were sent to the Soo and Duluth but up to Sunday night at 10 o'clock nothing had been heard from those places. As the boy is subject to falling fits fears are expressed for his safety.

CRICKET.

A general meeting of the Edmonton Cricket Club will be held this evening at eight o'clock sharp in the office of H. B. Boyce & Co. As several important items will be brought up at the meeting it is hoped that all those in town who take an interest in the great English summer game will make a special effort to be present.

BASEBALL ON BUSINESS BASIS

Company Being Formed to see that City Gets no More Yellow Ball

Baseball is going to be the real thing in Edmonton this summer and the fans are going to get a chance to support a team of which they will have occasion to be proud. No more flat afor the capital city, and Wetskiwin's aggregation will have to ginger up if they are going to stay in the game, while Calgary will look like a cipher with the rim off before the season is over.

At least that was the idea prevalent at Saturday night's meeting in McDougall & Secord's office, when 30 or 40 of the most prominent fans and players gathered to see what could be done to save the situation and mated the linen fabric until after midnight. As a result of a large amount of heart-to-heart talk and a few touching personalities, the boys finally arrived at a perfect understanding and the organization is to be commenced at once of a 100 share company whose principal object and aim was to finance the first class ball and relieve the great national game of the stigma of getting money under false pretences at the box office. The shares of the company which it is proposed to form will be issued at $10 per share and subscribers to shares of stock joined will be the electors of the management and the executive. A battery and one or two other players will be paid, but it all depends on how badly they are needed how many will be retained. The manager is to be given absolute control to hire, fire, throw out or call down any of the players, and the only thing he is to be answerable for is results. In plain English, Edmonton is going to win or know why. The intention is to reduce baseball to business principles. Hereafter the intention will be to see that the stockholders, who will take the place of contributors, will have a chance to get their money back in the shape of dividends at the end of the season, the public in the meantime having gotten better ball.

As Edmonton is building for the future in all other lines, the intention is that the same shall be done for baseball. The time is coming, possibly next year, certainly not farther away than two years, when Alberta will support a minor league. Edmonton and Calgary are open and ready for it now, and three or four other towns are coming along nicely. The intention of the promoters of the Edmonton company is to apply at once to the Board in New York and get the franchise for this city for a minor league team, and, in fact, to undertake the promotion of the league in this country.

The Saturday evening meeting was not one such as could be reported by rounds, but the net result was that Tom Rooks, who has had baseball experience from sunrise to sunset, was appointed manager of the ball team pro tem to handle the business while the company was being formed. Frank Good, F. J. Pults and Laurie Goodrich were appointed a committee to undertake the preliminaries of organizing the company and to report at a meeting on Wednesday evening. They are preparing the papers to-day. All who are interested in baseball and want to see it go in Edmonton are requested to be present at 8:30 at Henry Fraser's office on Wednesday evening.

ARMOUR GREW VERY WRATHY

Says President Roosevelt is Governed by Personal Animus Toward the Packers

Paris, June 11.—Ogden Armour lost his temper today when interviewed about the revelations of the Chicago packing house investigators appointed by President Roosevelt. As soon as the subject was mentioned he flew into a rage, stamping his foot and gesticulating as he spoke. He denounced President Roosevelt without stint. "I say that no sane man, nobody with the slightest knowledge of the packing trade as it is conducted in Chicago, can believe the horror stories in the newspapers," said Mr. Armour. "There is no doubt in my mind that the whole of these so-called revelations have been directly engineered by the President. He has a strong personal animus against the packers. He is now doing and will do anything in his power to discredit them in their business. The reason is too obvious to require explaining to anybody who knows anything."

London, June 11.—Armour & Co. have offered to pay the expenses of a committee of the British Medical Association which meets in Toronto in August to go to Chicago, Omaha and Kansas City to inspect the Armour packing houses. Armour is urging a complete disinterested inspection, leaving the report to the discretion of the doctors.

Washington, June 11.—New York service men are reported en route here with sensational information as to the use of poisonous preservatives by the beef trust. They were sent to Chicago by order of the President as soon as he had been advised of the results of the investigation of Commissioners Neil and Reynolds. They have concluded an exhaustive inquiry which will not only bring the packers to their knees, but will remove the influence being exerted against Congress by the great cattle interests with a view of forcing the president to capitulate.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. Geo. Clarkson, of Toronto, arrived in the city yesterday to spend a few months with her sister, Mrs. Howard Stutchbury.

Mrs. C. L. Carsley, Eighth street, will not receive during the summer months.

Mrs. A. E. Jackson, Jasper avenue, will not receive during June and July.

Mrs. J. Almon Valiquette, McDougall street, will not receive again until the fall.

LOCAL.

Rev. Robert Atkinson, of Cheshire, Ont., preached in Queen's avenue Presbyterian church yesterday.

L. O. Lodge No. 1794 meets to-night in Unity Hall, Sandison block, at 8 o'clock.

The W. C. T. U. will meet in the schoolroom of McDougall Methodist church on Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. All members are requested to be present.

The delegates to the Board of Trade convention will arrive to-morrow, and the convention will take place on the 13th and 14th. It is requested that the citizens will do all they can to make the visit of these western representatives men as pleasant as possible.

ZULUS WERE BADLY WORSTED

Lost Heavily In Protracted Engagement with British Forces

Pietermaritzburg, June 10.—The first decisive victory over the rebellious Zulus yet gained, followed a day of fighting yesterday, on the border of Zululand. Col. Berk's and Major MacKenzie's forces were engaged continually and the fighting ended with the coming darkness. Chief Mchekaxulu and two hundred were killed and many wounded, while the British loss was one killed and seven wounded. Col. Barker expected to follow up his advantage at daylight and another battle is likely. Later reports from the scene of battle state that the Zulus are demoralized and have fled. Their casualties number 350 dead. It is reported that Chief Bombata is wounded, but the report is not confirmed.

LADY JOURNALISTS WILL REACH EDMONTON TODAY

FIRE AT WOOLLEN MILL

Wool and Wood Company Suffered from Small Blaze this Morning

About 11 a.m. to-day fire broke out in the yard of the Edmonton Wool and Wood Company. The fire originated in an out-house, where the rag picking machine overhauled. The belt that operates the machinery almost carried the flames to the main building. The energetic action of the employees kept the fire under control until the brigade reached the factory. It seems the team that hauls the hose wagon were away from the fire hall when the alarm was given and some time was lost before the stream was playing on the flames. The damage is estimated at $250.

HOMESEEKERS DELAYED

A washout on the main line of the C.P.R. delayed the homesekers' excursion over fifteen hours last Friday. The heavy rains on Wednesday and Thursday in the Cypress Hills filled the creeks, which flooded the plains, and in one place covered over 500 feet of the railroad track. The rails were displaced and the ballast swept away. Two wrecking crews, one from Medicine Hat and the other from Swift Current, were sent out immediately, and with several hundred shovels and train hands were able to have the track repaired to allow the trains to pass over by 10 a.m. Saturday. R. R. Jamieson, general superintendent of the C.P.R. at Calgary said that the Great Northern requested the C. P. R. to handle their through passenger trains from Port to Fernie, indicating that the storm had extended far southward into the States.

NEWS ITEMS

The Bulletin's Daily Budget From the Sister Town

Strathcona, June 9.—A teachers' institute will be held in the Strathcona school on Monday and Tuesday, June 11 and 12, by Principal Bryant and Vice-Principal McNeil of the provincial normal school, Calgary. The public is cordially invited to attend these important sessions.

J. V. Salsbery, of Lacombe, was in town attending the funeral of his niece Ethel McIntyre.

J. A. Harkin, a Canadian ex-Californian, died at the Strathcona hospital a few days ago. He has been here for some time and a public charge on the town for some years.

Prof. C. H. Newton, will give an entertainment in Room 101, on Tuesday evening, June 10, under the auspices of the Strathcona street club.

The congregation of Holy Trinity church, Strathcona, have decided to build a new church this season. The new building will be solid brick and be erected on the present site of the old church, in the Eastern part of the town. Messrs. W. H. Martin & Co. of Lacombe, have secured the contract. The old church will be moved to the south and used for Sunday school purposes. The new building will be Gothic in design, and is to be completed at an early date. The cost will be in the neighborhood of $5000.

Mr. Adolph Huse, an ex-Californian, who has been engaged with Dr. J. C. Wainwright here, left this afternoon on the 4 p.m. train for Wetaskiwin, to manage Mr. H. McDonald's farm there. Mr. McDonald has lately come up to Strathcona for treatment.

A. Golich, who with his two sons was at the Alberta here for some time this spring, was in town today on a business tour. He and his sons have 180 acres in 52-16, 16m and a half mile north of Mannville. Mr. Golich and party are ready for a house erected and about twenty acres broken and in crops. He is well pleased with his land and leaves this evening for Mannville via the C. N. R.

Contractor J. M. Eaton, left this afternoon on the 4 p.m. train for Leduc, where his farm is. Mr. Eaton has much work on hand at present on both sides of the river and has a new school a few miles from town.

He has difficulty in getting material to keep pace with his requirements. Mr. Wainwright, Sr. has sufficient recovered from his late very serious illness to take an occasional outing.

Thomas Breerton, who has a private creamery a few miles from Leduc, was in town last week, taking a special examination as engineer.

Mr. William Joyce, of the Alberta, has joined the staff of Ross Bros., hardware, at Edmonton.

Robert Burkhart, who was killed two weeks while at work in the coal mine near Walter's mill, was buried today at 3 p.m. Wainwright's undertaking parlor, the sidewalk. The street and other were all packed by people to pay their last respects to one of their fellow workers who had had such a sudden call from active life to eternity. The burial arrangements were carefully arranged and executed by Undertaker Wainwright who was authorized by the mine owners to give the unfortunate man a public burial. Mrs. (Rev.) J. T. Johnson led the singing of hymns. The Rev. T. Johnson, pastor of the "Bible Life" and presided at the organ while Miss Daisy Wainwright sweetly intoned "Looking this way." The Rev. T. J. Johnson read Psalm XC, and delivered a very appropriate and touching address in which he advised all present to "Get right with God," to read God's word and pray daily, and live true, clean lives and prepare to meet the life which is to come. His words of the necessity of being ready for sudden death which may come to us at any time.

INVESTIGATION CONTINUED IN ISOLATION HOSPITAL CHARGES

Evidence Produced Saturday Afternoon and this Morning—
 Medical Health Officer Gives Evidence

E. Kieth Merkle was the first witness called at the afternoon session of the isolation hospital inquiry. He described the mattresses used as cheap mattresses, only one half mattress being used. There was apparently no system of furnishing supplies. On one occasion they were out of bread and water together for a whole day. The water was kept in a barrel, which was filled Tuesday and Thursday. One barrel of water was not enough for one patient and he was expected to make it do for three patients. In the kitchen there was a sack of potatoes for the use of the nurses. One half of these was a mass of black rot, and he refused to use them, as they were in the diphtheria tent and must have been infected by the germs. On one occasion a patient was prescribed chicken broth, and it was four days before he got the chicken. The cost tanks were only emptied once a week, and he filled them up in one day with water from the patients. The remainder of the drainage went by way of Rat Creek. A little way from where they were there was a pool of dead water and cows were paddling and drinking in this pool. The matter was reported to Mr. Main and Dr. Braithwaite. The case was not remedied and the cows were still there last week. The milk supply for the hospital came from the dairy to which these cows belonged. The milk supply was short, but was not increased when he applied for more. The patients who went for the milk said that they could not supply them with more milk as they had sold tickets around town and had not milk enough to supply their customers around town, as a consequence of which the policemen were after them. It took thirteen days to get one urinal bottle and he had to use an old tomato can. In reply to Mr. Biggar's question as to whether the urinal bottle was a difficult thing to get he said that the Kaffirs in Central Africa where he had been, were supplied with them. He had taken his can with him when he left the hospital and on Friday last was served with a warrant for his arrest for having stolen the hospital charts. He used his own charts, his own pen and his own ink, ruling them himself and doing the whole thing on his own instructions. The chief of police took the hospital charts away from him and refused to tell him who were out of the afternoon in the warrant. The chief did not pay him under arrest. For days and days he was on day and night duty with two patients. He had to look after the patients day and night without assistance, until, when the third patient came, he threatened to quit unless he had further assistance. He was then cooked by Mack when he did not look them he had to do without. Jim asked for Jim and was told that Jim was a luxury and he would have to do without it. Sullivan was the assistant who was put on and he was supposed to do night duty. On Sullivan's second night there he went to sleep and let the fires out. One of the patients caught cold and had a relapse. On Wednesday, 2nd, he complained to Dr. Park, whose patient the man was. On the 3rd of May, which was a cold, miserable day, Dr. McGibbon made his first call. That was the day that Sullivan went on the drunk. He drank about 14 ounces of whiskey. In the afternoon Sullivan came into the tent bellowing "the world is coming to an end," and sat down by the side of one of the patients and commenced to sing Irish songs. He telephoned Dr. Braithwaite, who came out an hour after and ordered Sullivan not to go on duty until he was sober. Sullivan had eight ounces more of whiskey, which Dr. Braithwaite took away from him and gave to Merkle, who put it under a patient's pillow. On the 4th Merkle refused to work with Sullivan. Main went to town with Sullivan and he understood that Main had discharged Sullivan. Dr. Braithwaite sent him back. One of the patients Grimbles refused to have Sullivan for nurse. He worked on the night of the 5th. On the 6th of May, during his (Merkle's) hours off duty Dr. Sullivan came into the tent and poured out a large amount of the patients' whiskey and drank it himself. On the 7th of May there was no whiskey to be seen in the tent and Sullivan had also drunk the eight ounces of alcohol for the patients' baths. He telephoned Dr. McGibbon and understood that Dr. McGibbon had reported to Dr. Braithwaite. Mr. Main sent Sullivan away and an hour or so afterwards Main received a telephone message asking him to come to the public hospital in twenty minutes to meet Dr. Braithwaite, saying that Sullivan was to be put in charge of the diphtheria tent, and Mack was to help him at the fever tent. On the afternoon of the 8th Dr. McGibbon and Dr. Braithwaite came out together and while Dr. McGibbon was attending his patient Dr. Braithwaite told Main to cut his pay to $2 a day. He had already refused to work for that and told Main that he would not do so now, that the cut was equivalent to a discharge. He considered that his patients were out of danger and that as there was no risk in his doing so he left next day. He gave it as his opinion that Bernard Asher was practically out of danger and was improving rapidly. The other patients were doing well. Mr. Weaver was out of bed, and Mr. Grindle was improving. He was away from the hospital exactly one week. When he came back there were two patients, Asher and Grindle, and two attendants, Mack and Ned. He found the bed in a disgraceful state. The mattress was soaked with the patients' discharges. The patients' temperature was 106 and he was delirious. There was no bandages and the boy had two terrible sores in his back. He thought it would take at least three days for the bed to get in such a filthy condition. He had nursed Kaffirs in the wilderness, but never saw them in such a state as the boy was. A large part of the food, where the nurse had been removed, he stayed with the boy from that time until he died. He had no arrangement as to what wages he was to get, but went because he was interested in the case and wanted to see the boy pulled through.

Cross-examined by Mr. Beck, he said there was only one patient in history when he went there, Carl, who was being attended by Dr. Smith. There was a foreman, Louis, an erysipelas patient of Dr. Hissop, in another tent, and a third one, a diphtheria convalescent in a third tent. There were doctors coming and going all the time, Dr. Braithwaite among them. He thought Dr. Braithwaite was not there more than four or five times during the month. He did not volunteer any complaint to Dr. Braithwaite until the day that he sent for him on the 3rd, he made all his complaints to Main. On that occasion he complained only of Sullivan, and out of the general conditions of the hospital. He did not see Dr. Braithwaite there at all after he came back. The tent leaked in several places and he had to spread newspapers over the patients' beds to keep the rain off.

In recapitulation, Merkle, in answer to Mr. Biggar, said that he had burned the mattress that he found the Asher boy on when he came back, as it was too filthy to be of further use.

William Asper, the father of the boy, was the next witness. He visited the hospital six or eight times during the boy's confinement there. When he was taken there he was very sick. He improved, and by the eighth was apparently getting better. On the thirteenth he found the tent in a terrible condition. The fire was out and the floor all muddy. It was raining in torrents, the tent was leaking, and the door could not be completely closed. The attendants stripped and changed the boy's shirt in the cold, with no fire in the tent. He went immediately to Dr. McGibbon's office and complained of the conditions at the tent. He was present when Dr. McGibbon telephoned to Dr. Braithwaite. He had been living in his own tent all the time and had been dry and comfortable. He thought there should be no difficulty in making a tent comfortable to live in.

Mr. Beck cross-questioned him as to how much the boy was exposed during the time that they were changing his clothes.

Humphrey Grindle, the patient mentioned in Merkle's testimony, was called. He was in the hospital for 21 days commencing the 24th of April. He described the conditions prevailing at the tent, corroborating what the other witnesses had said. He was the patient who objected to Sullivan nursing him, because he was drunk. He saw him drinking the whiskey. He figured that he drank about half a bottle during one night. He corroborated the story about Sullivan letting the fire out on the second night he was there. Sullivan was sleeping in the bed that Carr had left in the morning. He was there until after Asher died. He was there on the occasion when the boy's shirt was changed. He said the boy required the constant care of the nurse and it was difficult for him to keep the fire going as well. He was present when Dr. McGibbon objected to the nurse preparing the bandages with his dirty hands, but thought it was Ned and not Mack, as the doctor had said in his evidence. When the nurses took the straw mattress which the boy had been lying on out and turned it they took the hair mattress which he (Grindle) was using and he had to sleep on a canvas cot.

Cross-examined by Mr. Beck, he said that personally he had nothing much to complain of except that he had a relapse caused by the tent being cold. Mr. Biggar, called Grimbles back to ask him with regard to Dr. Braithwaite's visits. Grimbles said he was convalescent for two weeks, but he could not say whether Dr. Braithwaite was there or not. He never saw him there at all. He did not see him in the 7th, when he had the interview

Minister of the Interior Discusses Western Affairs

The assault of the Opposition on the Department of the Interior culminated on Friday of last week in the following resolution moved by Mr. R. L. Borden:

That a select committee of nine be appointed for the following purposes:

(a) To inquire into the management, alienation and disposal of the Crown lands of Canada (including timber and mineral lands and all other Dominion lands) managed or controlled by the Department of the Interior;

(b) To inquire whether there have been any irregular, improper, unauthorized or imprudent dealings or transactions in respect thereof, and who have been concerned therein;

(c) To inquire into the practical operation of the Dominion Lands Act and the amendments thereto and the regulations made by virtue thereof, and whether any abuses have arisen thereunder; and

(d) To report to the House upon the matters aforesaid, and whether any amendments are necessary or desirable in the said laws and regulations.

That the committee have power to send for persons, papers and records and to examine witnesses on oath or affirmation;

That three be a quorum of the committee.

In reply the Minister of the Interior spoke as follows (from Hansard): Hon. Frank Oliver (Minister of the Interior). Before the motion is dealt with I would like to offer a few remarks with regard to it. The speech which my hon. friend Mr. Borden has just made and the resolution he has moved are the culmination of the work of the party of the hon. gentleman opposite in parliament since the beginning of the session, a matter of some ten weeks. They embody, we must presume, their best thought as well as their best effort. The result cannot be characterized in the terms so often applied to great efforts and their results as a case of the mountain in labor bringing forth a mouse. In this case we may question whether it was or was not a mountain that was in labor, but I think that there can be no question that it has brought forth not even a mouse. My hon. friend has taken an eminently safe position. He has spoken a long time, but he has been very careful not to say anything either in his resolution or in his speech. He calls for an inquiry. An inquiry as to what? As to the policy of this government in administering the Department of the Interior? Surely, my hon. friend and his friends behind him are the committee of inquiry provided under our constitutional system, to examine, by ordinary parliamentary methods, the policy of the government of the day and to criticize it. He has delivered himself of his criticism on that subject. But there is also the question of administration. He asks for a committee to investigate the administration of this department of the government. Now, my hon. friend knows very well that, if he wants an investigation or a committee, all he has to do is to show cause, and he will get his committee of inquiry as soon as he asks for it. If he has any charges to make against the administration, he is at liberty to make them; and if he does not dare to make them, as he has not dared, I submit that himself and his party are thereby disqualified from afterwards making them in the course of this debate.

This is a third try during this session that our friends have made in attack upon the Department of the Interior. They first came on with a motion by the hon. member for Marquette (Mr. W. J. Roche). He was desperately anxious to direct the policy of the government in regard to the Department of the Interior; and we found on discussion that the policy which he and his party advocated was the very policy which had been followed by this government ever since it came into power; a policy which never had been followed by his friends when they were in power. Then we had another attempt when the hon. the leader of the opposition announced to an expectant country:

"I would like to inform the Prime Minister that on the first occasion on which the House goes into Committee of Supply, I propose to discuss certain matters connected with the Department of the Interior more especially in the administration of the homestead law, and certain abuses which have arisen thereunder, as well as to make certain suggestions as to improvement in the existing regulations and legislation."

That was a fairly large order. That was an intelligible statement. But the hon. gentleman did not make good on the next day when the House was moved into Committee of Supply. The member for St. Antoine, Montreal (Mr. Ames) took upon him not too broad shoulders the task of showing that the Department of the Interior had not been properly administered, that the country was not getting the benefit of wise administration. His suggestions were followed up by certain hon. gentlemen opposite, but the leader of the Opposition never came to the front with any allegations against the administration of the homestead law, nor any reference to abuses that had arisen thereunder, or suggestions as to its improvement. So the matter rested. But now we have the third attempt, and yet the hon. gentleman does not allege anything, but merely suggests a committee of inquiry.

There was a time when the hon. gentleman had his opportunity of being able to direct the affairs of the country in all its departments; that was the last general election. Had the people of the country approved of the policy he laid before them then no doubt they would have entrusted him with the duty of directing the administration of the government. They did not see fit to do so, and I submit that parliament will not, in its wisdom, undertake to place in the hands of a committee suggested by the Opposition the administration of the government of this country.

The hon. gentleman has been very strong on the subject of ministerial responsibility. That last general election there is also a parliamentary responsibility, and a member of parliament who holds a seat here is as much responsible as a member of the government. The Opposition also is under a measure of responsibility and in undertaking to declare that the government is not well administered, that abuses exist, if they expect to gain credence in the minds of the people, they must certainly come out with their suggestions, if they have any to make. If they know better how the Department of the Interior should be handled than it is handled now, they have had ten weeks of the time of this parliament to say so. They have had all the information it was possible for the department to place on the table of the House in answer to their requests but they have not yet been able to make up their minds on any single point upon which they are prepared to stake their reputation in declaring a policy which ought to be pursued at the present time. I hope, if they wish to discharge their responsibility to the people of this country, that they will come forward and tell us what amendment is required, and let the House deal with their proposition.

If they have no such proposition, then I say in the name of common sense let those who have, for a period, successfully administered the department, go on and continue to administer it. I cannot think that the gentlemen of the Opposition altogether appreciate the position. One of the reasons why they ceased to hold office in 1896 was because they were not able to appreciate the position, nor do they seem able to appreciate it today. During this session we have seen them make what we might call their grand attack upon the Department of the Interior and its administration. I do not think they are well advised in doing that, if they hope to secure approval for themselves and their party. If ever there was a time in the history of Canada when the work of any department of this Government was at its highest mark, it is in the Department of the Interior at the present moment. In what branch of that Department has there not been shown, in the interest of the country an improvement of today over yesterday and of yesterday over the day before? I do not claim any credit for it for myself as administrator of the department, but I do say that our friends are ill-advised in directing their chief attack to that particular branch of the government which at the present moment, for one reason or another, stands on the very crest of the wave as regards successful administration. The honorable gentleman has suggested that there is something wrong, that there is grave dissatisfaction, that faults have been committed. True, there is nothing perfect in this world. We all hope, of course, to reach perfection in the next, but as long as we are here, we are subject to the limitations of humanity. If honorable gentlemen opposite look for perfection in the Department of the Interior, in all its branches, they are ever achieving themselves when they are ever thus with the management of affairs in this country. There is no such claim made on the part of this department, or of any department of this government; but there is a claim made that the administration of the Department of the Interior judged by that standard by which every effort of every government is entitled to be judged, namely, the measure of success it has achieved, is less open to criticism than in the history of any of the other departments of the Interior, and I take the liberty of saying this in the hands of the colleagues—the Department of the Interior has been open to criticism at the present moment more especially in the administration ment of the day, than any other branch of any other government the Dominion of Canada has ever had.

This country is in a condition of boom from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Our mills and factories are running over time, and we are bringing people out from European countries, and especially from England, for the purpose of supplying such a demand for labor here in Eastern Canada as never existed before. In the Pacific coast the lumber mills are working overtime. Into that part of the country which lies between the Red River and the Rocky Mountains, and which constitutes the great strength of this Dominion, people are flowing at present at a rate never before known in our history. To what is all this great prosperity and expansion due? Surely it is not an exaggeration to say that it is due to the administration of the Department of the Interior in its land and immigration branches. The filling up of the Northwest was the dream of the fathers of Confederation. They realized that Canada could never achieve her destiny until that was accomplished. But my honorable friend refuses to give credit to the Department of the Interior. He says that it was only in the nature of things, that when the western states of the Union were filled up, the overflow should go to our Northwest. I notice that the honorable member for North Toronto (Mr. Foster) followed the same line when he touched on immigration matters some weeks ago. Both these gentlemen say there is no need for any government effort, that there is no need for the government to make any attempt to encourage immigration. The honorable member for North Toronto (Mr. Foster) had a soft side for those who came out as speculators, but he had no sympathy for those who came out as immigrants to settle on free land. When our honorable friend spoke out as there is no need for exertion by this government to fill up our Northwest, I take issue with them. I say that the success we have achieved is largely due to the efforts we have been putting forth in this direction. Let our friends test our policy and their byproduct. During the eighteen long years of their administration, our Northwest country lay dormant; yet while our broad prairies were lying fallow for want of people to cultivate them, over a million native born Canadians went over and settled in the western states of the neighboring republic, and that despite the fact that our friends opposite had spent many millions of the people's money in giving railway accommodation to the Northwest. There were more Canadians in the United States in the year these gentlemen went out of office than there is population of all classes and nationalities in Manitoba and the Northwest today. These honorable gentlemen said that we had to wait until the United States filled up and sent us settlers. I say not so. I say that when Canada had a surplus population of a million who went over to settle in the United States, the policy of the late government, under whose régime most of these children of our left us, must be held responsible. To what else can you ascribe it? Our prairies were just as fertile then as they are now. If that million of Canadians who went to the United States when honorable gentlemen opposite were in office, did not instead settle on these prairies which now are being taken up by hundreds of thousands of Americans and Canadians, we can only ascribe it to that policy which the member for Western Assiniboia of that day, the late Mr. Davin, described as crass and incomprehensible.

Mr. Lancaster—Tell us about the reported report.

Mr. Oliver—I might as well deal with that just now. We all remember the horror stricken tones which accompanied the production of a return by the member for Montreal (Mr. Ames) in which he declared that had a certain portion of the report had been struck out, in still more horror stricken tones the leader of the opposition told us today that it was stricken out in red ink with lines running from side to side of the page. I have not had time to go into all these matters carefully but I find we have very good precedents for striking out portions of a report.

"I am sorry we have not heard from the member for North Toronto before I was called upon to bring this matter up because he happened to be a member of the Government at the time when part of the report was stricken out, and on the theory advanced by the leader of the Opposition the honorable gentleman (Mr. Foster) was a sign of a party to the garbling of the report in this particular report. I find in the report of the superintendent of the Rocky Mountain Park, dated, Banff, December 26th, 1892, addressed to the Honorable T. Mayne Daly, Minister of the Interior, that a whole paragraph is left out and that there is no indication of its being left out. The papers show that a paragraph has been omitted from the original report sent in by Mr. George A. Stewart, superintendent of the Rocky Mountain Park and it was stricken out by the Conservative Government."

Mr. Oliver. No I admit it was not in red ink; it was stricken out in ordinary lead pencil and there is nothing in the report to show that it was so stricken out.

Mr. Lancaster. Are we to understand that the Minister has now given (Continued on Page Six) with Dr. McGibbon, and he felt sure that he was not there from the 11th until he was sent for after the boy died.

Otto Carr, another of the patients, was called. He said he was the first patient in the scarlet fever tent. He said the tent leaked when it rained. Mr. Merkle's attendance was good, but it was hard to get food. He was the patient who was ordered chicken but could not get it for four days. He could not get milk enough. During the time between when he was off the milk diet and when the chicken came he got toast and eggs and eggs and toast. After considerable "licking" they got some jam. There were several things about the management of the hospital that looked funny to him. Main went down town and came up to the hospital where he slept. He went into the diphtheria and scarlet fever ward and then went down town to his work without changing his clothes. The first day he was there Main bathed him in the morning before he went down town, and no one came near him all day until late at night. There was no fire; the stove had just been put up; a nurse came at some time during the day and closed the flap of the tent; but did not speak.

Mr. Beck, in cross-examining, asked Carr why he had not spoken to the nurse who closed the flap. He said he was too sick to say a great deal of anything, and at any rate he supposed that it was the duty of the nurse to find out if he wanted anything, not for the sick man to try to engage the attention of the nurse.

Mr. Beck asked Carr if he had gone into the diphtheria patients' room, and if so did he not consider that that was a wrong thing to do?

Carr said that he was quarantined and could not get away from the hospital to carry infection, but it was different in Main's case. He was working down town.

Dr. Harrison was put on the stand by Mr. Biggar, as the first witness this morning, to show that his patient, Weaver, suffered from the fact that the scarlet fever tent had no proper door, nor any double roof to keep it from leaking. He said that cooling should never be done in a scarlet fever ward, as it was. His patient had not made any complaint, but his manner showed what he thought of the surroundings.

Mr. Beck cross examined, but brought out nothing new.

To Judge Harvey, who asked what the conditions were, Dr. Harrison said they were very "rough and ready."

To Mr. Biggar, he stated that three patients were too many to have in a tent that size.

Dr. Smith was called. He said he was familiar with the isolation hospital. He visited it first in the latter part of March to see what accommodations there were there for patients. On the 10th of April he sent Otto Carr there. During his sickness of 21 days Dr. Smith visited him eight times. Carr was suffering from scarlet fever when he was taken there. He did not learn until after that Carr had been allowed to leave all day without attendance. He (Dr. Smith) had been promised by telephone by the man in charge that Carr would be given careful attention. Had Carr's case been a serious one the lack of attention might have been fatal.

He visited the hospital next day and found things very rough—so rough that there was no possibility of doing what is called patient nursing. The temperature went up and down at different times of the day or night, a circumstance, which was almost certain to cause complications. The cook stove in the tent caused odors which were likely to turn the patient against his food.

He did not know anything about the water supply except that one of the patients had told him that there was no water at the hospital and he was carrying water from the Hazelwood dairy, something which from a sanitary point of view was altogether wrong. He also found difficulty in getting milk for patients at the hospital, although he had no difficulty in getting all the milk he wanted for patients down town. On one occasion he had called Main's attention to the fact that cows were drinking from a pool back of the hospital where the hospital slops were dumped. Main said that he would look into it, but he did not seem to think that it made any difference whether drank there or not.

To Judge Harvey, Dr. Smith said he was certain that drinking this water was certain to contaminate the milk. Mr. Beck, in cross examination, endeavored to establish that when the temperature was gradually changing between day and night that a change of bed clothing would have the effect of keeping the patient's body at a uniform temperature, but Dr. Smith refused to admit that.

To Judge Harvey he said that there was no thermometer in the tent, or at least if there was one he never saw it.

To Mr. Beck, who asked if the only occasion when he made a complaint was with regard to the cows drinking the contaminated water, Dr. Smith said he had complained about there being no water, no chicken broth, no bread, and of other things. He had tried to get the health officer but failed. He complained to the commissioner and to Main.

Asked if he knew why there was no nurse there for Carr on the first day, if he knew that Merkle had been engaged at 10 o'clock on that day, and that after having collected his things he had set out to go to the hospital, and lost his way, the doctor said he had not heard anything of it before.

Dr. Hyslop said he visited the hospital first about the 8th of April. His patient was in the shack and whenever went into the tent except once, when he went to the tent to get water to wash his hands. He was more than satisfied with the treatment his patient had received. He had heard something about an shortage of supplies. He telephoned the city police and the complaint about there being no bread was attended to at once.

To Judge Harvey he said that at that time of the year, when the weather was so nice, the tent was all right for scarlet fever, but it would not be a good place in bad weather.

To Mr. Beck he said that as a temporary arrangement the hospital had impressed him favorably. It was all right in fine weather.

Dr. Blais had had an erysipelas patient at the isolation hospital. He found the shack on one occasion in very bad shape. The floor was dirty, blankets dirty, pillows dirty.

The only person he saw in charge was a Galician woman, who was waiting on his patient, another Galician woman. She could not talk any English, and he had difficulty in making her understand. He learned that Mr. Main would be back at six o'clock and he made a complaint to Mr. Main. When he next came he found the place clean and dry.

Dr. Parke had a scarlet fever patient, Grimble, at the hospital from the 24th of April to the 18th of May, during which time he made almost daily visits. There was only one nurse there when his patient went there, but he thought one was sufficient at that time, as neither of the men was very sick.

To Mr. Beck, Dr. Parke said that Merkle had complained that he had difficulty in getting milk and also complained about being on night and day duty. He was only getting 22 a day and said he should have 24. Later Merkle refused to work any longer unless there was a night nurse. On the first day when Asher was there Merkle complained that Dr. McGibbon had not come to see his patient, and said that he had called him up by telephone.

Asked by Mr. Beck what was his opinion about the hospital before the investigation, Dr. Parke said personally he had no complaint to make. The nurse had let the fire out, and he did not approve of that, but his patient got good attendance and there was no occasion for complaint on his part. He had no hesitancy about sending a male patient to the tent.

Judge Harvey asked, if that was his opinion before the investigation, what was his opinion now. Dr. Parke said he would not have any hesitancy about sending a patient there. He was there when the wind was blowing and it was raining, but he had found the tent dry, although there might have been drafts. These might be serious to the patients. He had not seen Dr. Sullivan at all and did not know anything about him.

To Mr. Beck he said that there should be no ill effects from exposing the boy's body in order to change his shirt.

To Mr. Biggar he said that it would not be as dangerous to expose the scarlet fever patient's body if his temperature were high as if it were low. He did not know whether or not there was a thermometer in the tent.

Dr. Parke admitted that the tent leaked, but to Mr. Biggar, who asked, "Do you pledge your professional reputation that your patient did not suffer from being in a tent which the water was coming through," he answered "I do."

Being further pressed by Mr. Biggar, Dr. Parke admitted that Grimble had to move his bed on account of the water coming through the roof, but he did not know how many places the water came through or how big a leak there was. He said that Grimble was dry.

Mr. Biggar asked if a patient answering to the description of Asher's case would not suffer from being kept in a leaky tent with a varying temperature. Dr. Parke said it depended on conditions.

Mr. Beck called Dr. Bralithwaite, medical health officer. He said that until some three years ago contagious patients were sent to the public hospital, when the medical health authorities stopped that. Then the health authorities of the city tried to get the general hospital and the public hospital to furnish isolation. The general hospital is a Catholic hospital, and —the reason why the report of the department was garbled.

MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR DIS- CUSSES WESTERN AFFAIRS

Mr. Oliver. No! I am merely relieving my honorable friend's opinion from that terrible shiver which seems to have run through them when they found, as they said, that the report had been garbled.

Mr. Power. Will the Minister read the portion that has been left out of the Rocky Mountain Park Report?

Mr. Oliver. Surely.

"Thereport of the meteorological observation is not as complete as could be wished and I would suggest that the question of obtaining more complete and extended observations of the climate of this important station be brought to the attention of the department under whose control it is, so that this defect may be remedied."

Mr. Bennett. Now that's very important.

Mr. Oliver. It is not important in the slightest degree and I have no hesitation in saying that it was properly struck out. My experience as a member of the Government is not long and I am not aware of what the practice has been, but I will say that if a Minister is required to put in print every atom of a report that is sent to him by his subordinate officers he will issue a very remarkable and very voluminous series of reports, and our friends opposite who are so anxious about the dignity of this House will not find much comfort in reports loaded up with every and suggestion that any official of the Government may see fit to make. Speaking as an outsider so far as the preparation of reports is concerned, it would seem to me that if the Minister has any responsibility at all or any right at all, it is not only his right but his duty to Parliament to edit the reports of his department.

Mr. Lennex. Are we then to understand that portions of these reports have been omitted other than those which have been called attention to? I understand from the Minister that not only this has been left out, but that other portions have been left out in various reports.

Mr. Oliver. I have not looked into the matter and I cannot say as to that, but I have no hesitation in saying that so far as my poor judgment goes it would be perfectly proper and right and in accordance with the dignity of this House and with the duty of the Minister to properly edit the reports of his department even if that did involve the striking out of a portion of report as was done in this particular case.

Mr. Oliver. I am not able to follow all the points my honorable friend dealt with but there was one he was very strong on, and that was the administration of the timber in the country. He had a considerable grievance because tenders for timber were opened by a single officer of the department and he did venture to suggest that there should be two or three officers—or did he make that suggestion or any other suggestion as to what ought to be done? However the suggestion which he tried to convey to the country, which he tried to put on Hansard, so that it would appear in the press of his party was that there was a corrupt handling of these tenders, and that the officer of the department, whoever he might be, did as a matter of fact award these tenders. If my honorable friend has a charge of that kind to make and will make it, we will give him his investigation, quickly; but I think he ought to make it as a charge and not as an insinuation.

The leader of the Opposition (Mr. R. L. Borden) in his criticism of the policy and administration of the Department of the Interior which related especially to the administration of timber lands—the sale of timber lands and the adjustment of royalties or due charges upon these lands—laid particular stress upon two points: One was that the timber regulations existing under the previous Government had been amended under the present Government so as to give a continuous tenure. The other was that it improperly created a property right.

Mr. R. L. Borden. The objection I discussed was the elimination of the power to revise the rental or royalty.

Mr. Oliver. I must repeat that my honorable friend (Mr. R. L. Borden) did object to the amendment which gives continuous tenure. His position on that question was criticized, in a previous debate by the honorable member for Argenteuil (Mr. Perley), who was a practical lumberman agreed with that amendment as being practically necessary. I also call attention to the fact that, in the province of Ontario, whose greatest industry, next to agriculture, is lumbering, although the license to cut timber terminate nominally each year, yet, as a matter of fact, those licenses are renewable for ever so long as merchantable timber remains upon the ground and the lessee sees fit to comply with the conditions. It is merely quibbling, it is dealing with the matter in a way that is not in accordance with the dignity of this House to suggest that the issue of a timber berth for which tens of thousands of dollars is, in reality or as a matter of fact, terminable at the end of each and every year. It may be so in words, as I have said, but in fact it is not so. The case in Ontario is in fact and as it is in the Northwest in law. I do not think that any person in this House or out of it will quarrel with my position when I say that if it is a proper thing in fact, it may very fairly be provided for in law.

On the other point, and the one to which my honorable friend has just now referred, is his contention that a certain change of the regulations deprived the department, or the Government of the right to vary the duties collected upon the timber cut under these licenses. Now, I am not a lawyer and have no doubt that he has given this matter a great deal of careful study, and possibly his legal interpretation is correct that the department has no right to vary the duties under a license once that license is granted. But I desire to say that in considering the matter departmentally, it has been brought to my attention that, as a matter of fact and in administration, the financial obligations created by the terms of the license are and have been varied from time to time by change of the regulations. My honorable friend suggests that because certain words in the old regulations providing that the duties may be varied are not contained in the present regulations, therefore the power conveyed by those words is not retained. This we do not admit. We maintain that our right of varying duties does exist, as we have the right from time to time to vary the regulations. We maintain that as the license is only issued year by year, each renewed license is subject to that terms and regulations in force at the date of its renewal. We hold that the omission of those words does not affect the right of the Government to change the amount of duties or financial obligations placed upon a license at the will of the Government; that the power retained without being especially expressed. In support of that view, the following changes have been made in the timber regulations at the dates which I will mention. These regulations support the contention I now make that we have the right to vary the financial obligations placed upon the license, by the regulations established by order in council of the first of July, 1898:

"Subsection 14 provides that sawlogs and other timber for manufacture taken from the berth must be manufactured at the saw-mill of the licensee in the berth. This provision was previously in the regulations. It has not been put in the license since January 1, 1901, but the license holder is subject to the regulations passed by the Governor in Council. This regulation was rescinded for British Columbia by order in council of the 12th January, 1899, but by order in council of 26th July, 1901, it was provided that all timber cut on berths in the railway belt in British Columbia shall be manufactured within the limits of the Dominion."

The terms upon which the license was granted, affecting in important particulars the value of the timber of the license holder, were varied by subsequent order in council, the Government thereby asserting its right to vary those financial terms.

"Regulations, 1st July.—Provided in form or license, clause 14, that lands granted to any railway company may be withdrawn on notice to the licensee, and minister of Interior."

"Previously this right referred only to lands granted to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company."

That surely is the assertion of a right to vary the financial terms upon which the licensee holds his berth.

"Order in council, 9th April, 1901.—Provided that licensee shall pay one-half of the cost of fire guarding their limit."

This is a variation and is a substantial burden placed upon the holders of timber limits, and is an assertion of the paramount right of the Government to vary the original financial arrangements which were contained in the license as originally issued.

der the care of the sisters, and the public hospital is a public hospital, but not under the city authority. Such negotiations have been going on until in the not very distant past. An arrangement was made between the city and the public hospital for an isolation hospital which was to be built by the city on the proposed site of the proposed new public hospital which was later found unacceptable to the hospital owing to the proposed high level bridge. The city was to build the isolation hospital and pay $1,000 toward its maintenance per year. The city went so far as to submit a by-law for the raising of $3500 to build the hospital. That was eight months ago. Since that time until two weeks ago they have been disagreeing about the site. Several sites were selected, but as soon as a site was selected was presented against the adoption of the site. Two weeks ago the medical association took the matter up and a by-law is now being prepared to submit to the council at its next meeting providing for an isolation hospital on a site owned by the city. In the meantime, the isolation of patients was carried on in a shack which was built by the city for a smallpox emergency but never used. The shack became filled and a tent became necessary. It had not been in the tent since it was put up. He did not know whether daylight could be seen through the holes or not; he knew that there was an hole, because Main had reported it to him, but he did not consider it a serious matter. He had a diphtheria patient in the shack. He had simply gone out to attend to his patient and once to look into a complaint by Dr. Smith that cows were drinking out of a pool back of the hospital. He reported to the commissioners and recommended the pool fenced but they reported back that they only had power to fence one side and recommended that he use pits and disinfectants which he ordered Main to do. He went out on another occasion in pursuance of a complaint made by Dr. McGibbon to Dr. Wilson re Sullivan. He was away at the time. Dr. Wilson had told Sullivan off until his return. On his return he met Dr. McGibbon, and asked him if he had a complaint about Sullivan drinking the alcohol. Dr. McGibbon said he would not allow a nurse under the influence to attend to his patient. He took Dr. McGibbon with him and investigated the case and did not find any evidence that Sullivan had drunk the alcohol. Rather than have any dissatisfaction he removed Sullivan to the patients in the shack. He had had no proof and he took Sullivan's word that there was no proof in the complaint. One day before this he was telephoned from the isolation hospital and asked to come out. He went out and found Sullivan drunk. Sullivan had a bottle in his pocket which he gave up. He told Sullivan to get him home before going on duty. On the way out he met Main, who said that he had heard that Sullivan had drunk all the liquor and was taking more. He explained to Main the conditions on which Sullivan was to go to work. Next day in the afternoon Sullivan came to his office with a letter from Main stating that Sullivan was discharged because the patients would not have him. He saw Main and remonstrated him for discharging Sullivan without his authority. Next day he sent Sullivan back with instructions to Main that if Sullivan drank any more he should be discharged.

Any conversation that he had had with Dr. McGibbon he regarded as confidential. He had told Dr. McGibbon that Sullivan was a doctor and that if he was in deep water it was up to the medical men to help him out. On the 15th of May he was called to the telephone by Dr. McGibbon who made a complaint about the hospital. He wrote Dr. McGibbon's complaint down and made an immediate report to the council as it was sitting that night. Unfortunately the report did not reach the council until it was just rising and the report was not taken up. The report said that Dr. McGibbon claimed that one of his patients was dying from intonation and detailing the other circumstances later pointed out in Dr. McGibbon's letter. Referring to Sullivan's case, Dr. Braithwaite said he contended that Sullivan was drunk and drunk once only and that no one could prove that he was drunk more than once. Since that he had seen Sullivan frequently and as far as he knew there was no cause of complaint. Main was in the position of being in charge under him, ever since the isolation hospital was established. He slept there, but was not supposed to be a tenant. Murkley was a trained nurse, practically a private nurse for Carr. Murkley was not counted as a city nurse. There was a man called McLaid, known as "Mac", another called Leslie and another called "Ned" whose name was Hewitt. There were no trained nurses in the employ of the city. There were no mail trained nurses to be had in the city. When he engaged McLaid he did not think it necessary to engage a trained nurse.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to "The Deputy Commissioner of Public Works, Regina, Sask." and endorsed "Tenders for Saskatoon Bridge" will be received up to 4:30 p. m. Monday, June 25th, 1906, for the supply of all materials and for the construction of four (4) concrete piers and two (2) abutments for a traffic bridge over the Saskatchewan River at Saskatoon. About 2800 cubic yards of concrete will be required in the work. A certified cheque for the sum of $2500 must accompany each tender. The cheque will be retained until the necessary contract and bond are executed and the work commenced. The cheques of unsuccessful bidders will be returned after the contract is signed.

DOMINION CONCERT COMPANY

The Maple Creek Signal says: This company of talented artists appeared here last Friday night to a crowded house. The members were all well received and encores called for in nearly every case. Miss Badgley is an accomplished pianist and her portrayal of Spanish was highly artistic. Miss White possesses a most pleasing soprano voice which is well suited for operatic work. Miss Mullins, a talented young pianist, was well appreciated both as a solo pianist and accompanist. Mr. Leonard as a violinist has few equals and his rendering of some of the masterpieces was all that could be desired. Mr. Houshal, in the burlesque "A pair of lunatics," was decidedly funny and brought down the house. This company will meet with a hearty reception on their return visit.

The company appears in the Thistle Theatre, Edmonton, on Tuesday evening.

"A" SQUADRON ORDERS

By Major Paton, C. C. "A" Squadron, Edmonton, June 8.

1. Parade—The Squadron will parade on Monday evening, drill order, for squad and rifle drill dismounted.

There will be a mounted parade on Wednesday, June 13th, at 7.30 p. m. under command of Lieut. W. A. Griesbach. All men who have horses are expected to be present. Dress, drill order without arms. Saddlery will be issued from drill hall at 7.30.

2. The following, having been duly attested, are taken on the strength of the squadron and posted as follows:

MOCK PARLIAMENT

The third session of the mock parliament was held in the club rooms of the Young Men's Liberal Association on Friday evening. It was an open meeting and quite a few visitors, including a number of ladies were present. Hon. W. T. Finlay, Clerk of the Legislature, J. R. Cowell and Deputy Speaker Boyle occupied seats to the right and left of the speaker.

The debate of the evening was on a proposal to build a railway from Edmonton to Vermilion on the Peace River. The bill was introduced by the Minister of Public Works (J. A. McKinnon) and seconded by the Minister of Agriculture (C. Ross Valmor). The bill provided for the construction of the railway by the province and its operation under a lease by the C.N.R.

The debate was a very good one and gave evidence of quite an intimate knowledge of a question of much more importance than is usually discussed by mock parliaments. The efforts both in support of, and in criticism of the bill were good bright speeches and were much enjoyed by those present. Both Independent members strongly supported the Government. One of the bills of the evening was the reply of the Minister of Public Works to the leader of the Opposition as to how the bonds were to be floated. Those taking part in the debate were Messrs. McKinnon, Palmer, Harrison, Walker, Robertson, Greene, Thom. Race, McLeod and Strong. The bill was carried by a bill of 14 to 8.

The House adjourned to meet next Friday evening to debate the Women Suffrage bill, when an interesting time is anticipated.
